“A warm and gracious woman with a wicked sense of humor, Rosemary was such a special lady. We became friends many years ago on a walking tour in Tuscany. She was one of a kind. So very sorry for your loss. She is in a better place where there is no more pain and suffering. May God comfort you during this time as you celebrate all that she meant to you and how her influence lives on in all of our lives today.

“So sorry for your loss. Death is painful, but by no means permanent. In 1 Corinthians 15:26, God promises us of this.

“ Rest in peace, Rosemary. You were a nurturing aunt (more like an older sister) during my growing up years, and a friend that was always there for me. I will miss you dearly during the rest of my earthly life, but know that I will see you again someday in our promised heavenly one. Sending much love to your whole family. Frank
